Greater Cleveland Volunteers "Sparkle"

Who has time to volunteer?

Well, Michael Hoffman and at least 2, 240 other people – ages 18 to 100 – who are active in the Greater Cleveland Volunteers program. And since its establishment 45 years ago, the organization estimates that its volunteers have generated 17.7 million hours of service to Northeast Ohio communities.

Harnessing that effort is the goal of Greater Cleveland Volunteers, which celebrated this energy and effort with a family-style dinner of chicken breast and roasted pork, sauced green beans and pierogis at Sterle's Country House. The dinner honored Hoffman with the 2017 David F. Leahy Award for Volunteer Excellence, and Judson Services Inc. with the Community Partner Award.

"Our staff matches each volunteer's interest, skills and availability with opportunities at more than 100 agencies," said Tom Barnard, GCV board president. Tutoring students, helping the homeless, assisting at hunger centers and serving arts and cultural troupes are some of the opportunities.

For example, when Hoffman retired from a successful business career five years ago, he wanted to contribute at a grass-roots level. He became a certified Hands-On Care Volunteer, providing extra support to male patients who prefer another male to assist with such hygiene-related tasks as shaving, visiting patients' homes, nursing homes and assisted living facilities. "I'm continually amazed at the wonderful people I get to know," said Hoffman, whose broad interests have led him to also work at Sports Com-
